WORK DONE

WORK DONE

During my internship at Dream High Institute, I worked on Web Designing using HTML5, CSS3, Bootstrap, and JavaScript. The internship focused on designing responsive, attractive, and user-friendly websites by applying modern web design principles. Throughout the internship, I gained practical knowledge in creating professional web pages and improving website layouts and user experience.

Initially, I learned the fundamentals of HTML5, which is used to create the structure of web pages. I developed different types of web pages using semantic HTML elements such as headers, navigation bars, sections, forms, tables, images, and footers. I learned how to organize webpage content in a structured and meaningful manner.

After learning HTML, I worked with CSS3 to improve the appearance of websites. I designed attractive layouts by applying colors, fonts, backgrounds, spacing, borders, and animations. I also used Flexbox and CSS Grid to create well-organized page layouts. Media queries were used to make websites responsive so that they worked properly on desktops, tablets, and mobile devices.

A major part of the internship involved learning JavaScript, which helped me add interactivity to web pages. I learned JavaScript concepts such as variables, operators, functions, loops, conditional statements, arrays, and objects. I also performed DOM manipulation to dynamically update webpage content and improve user interaction.

Using JavaScript, I implemented features such as form validation, image sliders, responsive navigation menus, button click events, dynamic content updates, and interactive web page elements. These activities helped me understand how JavaScript improves website functionality and user experience.

I also worked with Bootstrap 5, which helped me develop responsive websites efficiently. Using Bootstrap's grid system and built-in components, I designed navigation bars, cards, buttons, forms, tables, carousels, and other responsive layouts. Bootstrap made website development faster while maintaining a professional design.

During the internship, I designed various web pages, including landing pages, login pages, educational websites, business websites, and portfolio pages. These projects enhanced my creativity and helped me understand the complete web designing process from planning to implementation.

I learned the importance of organizing project files properly by maintaining separate folders for HTML, CSS, JavaScript, and images. I also tested websites on different browsers and devices to ensure compatibility and responsiveness. Browser Developer Tools were used to identify and fix design issues, layout problems, and JavaScript errors.

Overall, the internship provided valuable practical experience in Web Designing. It improved my creativity, technical knowledge, and confidence in designing responsive and user-friendly websites that meet modern web standards.
